THE SECOND DAY.

Peace in the Council and Clashing in the House.

The House and the Senate.

STATESHOOD AND SILVER.

The Republicans Again Force Delay on Both the Measures.

COMMITTEES ANNOUNCED.

AS WAS EXPECTED, THE MAJORITY INSISTS ON CONTROLLING EVERYTHING.

H. O. Snyder Elected Sergeant-at-Arms in the House—Several Important Bills Introduced in Both Branches—Scenes and Incidents of the Session.

The second day in the Legislature opened up with peace in the Council and a continuation of the first day's bulldozing on the part of the majority in the House. Allen and Varian were as much riled at the sight of a Democratic measure as a bull is at the sight of a red flag and each managed once or twice to lose both temper and dignity under the roasting to which they were subjected by Judge Powers.

On the stateshood and silver questions the Republicans have become more and more determined. The Democratic side, recognizing that the questions are likely to come up for consideration in the near future, have been anxious to give expression at once to their ideas on those questions but the Republicans have insisted on their motions in order to hold off consideration until they can endeavor to make an impression that the measures emanated from their side. For this attitude they were roasting to a turn yesterday by Powers, who claimed that the Republican leaders are untrue to their constituents when they delay consideration of such important questions.

Varian carried out his promise to introduce a resolution against the taking off of the tariff on wool, and also made a faint attempt to show that the Republicans are in favor of the people, by handing in a memorial asking for stateshood. Allen brought forward a memorial on the lead question and the House, by a majority of 15, gave the Industrial House to the Salt Lake schools. Two bills were introduced in the House and one in the Council making eight hours the working day on public works. A bill was introduced in each House extending the time of redemption in forced sales of real estate from six months to two years. Several other bills of lesser importance were also introduced. The other business done was mostly of a routine nature.

The officers of both houses are now getting down to business, though there is sometimes a little hitch. President Breeden, of the Council, expedites business in a praiseworthy manner, but Speaker Emery, of the House, is somewhat slow in getting through with the business, and could make good use of some of the parliamentary short cuts that are allowable. He was somewhat blind in one case yesterday to the claims of the minority for a vote, and gave Allen recognition when Powers should have been recognized. The clerks are doing well.

The announcement of committees yesterday was somewhat surprising, as they had not been expected until today. President Breeden, of the Council, gave each of the Democratic members a chairmanship, but distributed his favors somewhat unequally among the minority members, giving Lund only three places and Adams only four, and giving others as many as ten. Speaker Emery did not seem to give even one chairmanship to the minority, but gave the plums to the majority.

The Council amendments to H. C. R. 1 were concurred in. This is the resolution providing for stationery, etc., for both houses.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read, corrected and approved.

President George V. Wallace, of the Rock Mountain Bell Telephone company, proffered the use of an instrument. Accepted with thanks.

Powers endeavored to present a resolution at this point and Mr. Allen began hostilities with two points of order and called for the order of business.

Powers introduced a bill providing that eight hours should be the working day on all public works. Referred to its second reading and referred to the judiciary committee.

FREE PUBLIC LIBRARIES.

Allen presented a bill providing for the maintenance and enlargement of public libraries in cities of the first class and second-class. Referred to the committee on education. This provides for putting such institutions under the control of education and levying special taxes for their maintenance.

Memorials to Congress—Allen, Warner, Nebeker.

LEAD MEMORIAL.

Mr. Allen presented the following joint memorial on the lead question:

J. M. 2.—Your memorialists, the Governor and the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah, would represent:

"That the passage of the proposed Wilson bill will be a direct and deadly blow to lead mining in Utah, one of our most important industries, and reduce the production of gold in this territory nearly $1,000,000 annually by closing such mines."

The union of miners and laborers, if the Wilson bill becomes law, will be placed in direct competition with the cheap labor of Mexico, and this must result in a reduction in wages, already too low, or in the closing down of our mines."

"That the national interests of the whole west demand the retention of the present status quo."

"That no lead ore should come in free of duty, whether carrying a greater value in silver or not."

Wherefore we urge that the present duty on lead ore be retained, and that no lead ore be admitted free of duty because they carry silver or other valuable metals."

Resolved, That our delegate, Hon. J. L. Robinson, be requested to urge upon Congress these facts, and that he be requested to use all proper measures to secure protection to the lead interests of this territory."

A further copy of the memorial be referred to the committee on memorial and Powers moved to refer to the committee on mines and mining. Allen's motion carried by a party vote.

SILVER MEMORIAL.

Allen presented the following resolution on the silver question:

H. J. M. 4.—Your memorialists, the Governor and Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah, earnestly represent:

"That the commercial and manufacturing interests of the United States have been increasing at an unprecedented rate, and that the necessity of silver is becoming more and more imperative."

"That abundant money of ultimate redemption is necessary to the growth and stability of our business."

"That accumulated capital can find secure and profitable investment only in commerce and manufactures."

"That the rate of interest on money is too high, and that the necessity of enacting at once such laws as may be necessary to open our mints to the coinage of silver without restriction to the ratio of 16 to gold."

"That your memorialists feel that the silver question is one of the most important of the day, and that your memorialists feel that the silver question is one of the most important of the day, and that your memorialists feel that the silver question is one of the most important of the day."

The delegate to Congress is requested to present the memorial to the attention of that body.

A SHARP DEBATE.

Allen moved that the memorial be referred to the committee on Powers asked that the House immediately, as the question is too important to be delayed. Allen upheld his position by saying that there were several memorials on the same matter and all should be referred to one committee. Powers said he did not care which party introduced the memorial, did not care how the ideas were expressed, and that the people of the east to learn that out here in the west the people are in favor of the redemption of silver. He could not understand why the people are suffering because of the need of redemption of the white metal. He wanted the views flashed over the wires that the people here demand.

The motion for immediate consideration was lost by a party vote, all the Republicans but Warner voting against it.

STATEHOOD RESOLUTION.

Powers introduced a following resolution on stateshood, asking that his memorial laid on the table the day before be taken up and put upon its passage at once.

Allen did not want speedy action taken on the matter, but wanted to bring up a Legislative quibble and have the resolution referred to the proper committee. He, however, wanted to have the stateshood matter considered at once. He recognized that the majority was going to do as it wished and was going to pay no heed to the claims of the minority. He wished to say, however, that if the men who had been elected on a platform favoring stateshood, went back on their pledges, in the next Legislature they will receive the same treatment on the Republican side of the House. He said that stateshood had been delayed long enough and the people are in favor of the immediate admission of the commonwealth. He saw no reason why the majority, which was elected on a stateshood platform should put quibbles in the way of the immediate admission of the commonwealth of the Legislature of this territory. It should go out to the Congress that the Legislature is in favor of the measure. He secured the Republican vote for its question on the matter. Varian put mad over this and started a personal attack on Powers but was shut off by a point of order.

FREE WOOL MEMORIAL.

Varian introduced a memorial on free wool, protesting against the passage of the proposed bill of the Wilson bill in relation thereto and making some of the arguments usually made.

Read second time and referred to committee on education.

STATEHOOD MEMORIAL.

Varian introduced a memorial on stateshood, which set forth the territory is entitled to be clothed with stateshood, because she has sufficient population and resources and the people are in favor of it to fulfill the duties of self-government.

Powers moved that it be immediately put on its passage. Referred to committee on education. The resolution was passed by a party vote of 18 to 12, party lines being somewhat broken.

A communication was received from the Council, bringing the C. R. 1, providing for the raising of the flag over the building, and C. R. 2, providing for the printing of rules and list of members. Agreed to.

Allen presented a memorial asking for the granting by Congress of the Industrial Home to Salt Lake city, for the use of high school. It is a memorial for the purpose of having a school made it necessary for the city to have some better accommodations than at present, and there is no prospect of gaining more from the revenue of the board. It is shown how the present board took the city and built up a good and sufficient system that is now seen, but that the revenues were exhausted.

Referred to the committee on memorial.

Friday, the 19th, was fixed as the day to visit the Agricultural College.

ANOTHER EIGHT HOUR BILL.

Allen introduced a bill providing for an eight hour day on all public works. Committee on judiciary.

The report of the board of the Insane Asylum was referred.

Stanford moved that a committee on capital and grounds be appointed. Carried. Members to be announced later.

Waters introduced a bill providing that the time of ultimate redemption in cases of forced sales of real property be extended from six to twenty-four months. Referred to committee on judiciary.

Adjourned by benediction.

Notes.

Mr. Allen—I move to lay on the table.

Allen arose to a point of order and not in a heat over nothing.

Tolton is making the nucleus of a good record.

The page in the House marks another era in our lawmaking.

"Tony" Ivins made himself heard yesterday for the first time.

Nebeker has been through too much to be silenced by bulldozing.

Varian is on record as desiring no applause when the point is against his side.

Allen's correction of the minutes which was not made by him, was a good one.

The majority in the Council will find that the minority is a pretty tough one.

Varian objected to applause in the lobby when Allen was being roasted by Powers.

Hatch will do routine business today and a number of new bills will be introduced.

The Republican majority let Allen and Varian do all the talking and voted as they are told.

Hatch, E. Johnson, the Democratic centurion, was an interested spectator in the House.

It is thought that Nebeker will be able to hold down his end of the committee on memorial.

The majority of the councilors resigned after the close of the session to do committee work.

Hatch of Heber made his maiden speech by asking to have bills read twice for the information of members.

The telephone promise by a member of the Council chamber yesterday afternoon.

The committees are showing a great deal of energy in getting down to work. An avalanche of new bills is expected today.

Tolton has recovered somewhat yesterday, but it is not supposed he will tempt fate any more by treading on dangerous ground.

Allen's attempts at repartee remind one of the actions of a man who took an iron bar to kill a tiger. Before he could swing the bar, he was nabbed.

When the minutes were being read, Allen paid attention until the clerk read the "Power" silver and stateshood resolutions. Then he got up and walked around.

Nebeker said he found on his desk a copy of the Provo Enquirer and was slow to read it and pick up resolutions on education. Laid on the table.

The handsome bouquet of ferns and merriment that graced the desk of President Breeden on the opening days of the Legislature was a gift from Dwyer, the florist.

It has become evident that the Republican majority does not intend to allow anything to pass which may favor the Democratic side, no matter how good the subject matter.

They say that Allen and Taylor got together last night and sympathized with each other because of the lead and silver resolutions taken from their hands when Varian and Booth were appointed on the judiciary committee.

THE LAST SAD RITES.

Funeral of the Late Judge Blackburn Held Yesterday.

The funeral of the late Judge Blackburn took place yesterday afternoon in the presence of a large concourse of mourners. Among whom were many of the legal friends of the deceased.

The services took place at the First Presbyterian church. The Rev. F. L. Arnold made the opening prayer and read the prayer of the day. The Rev. J. M. McLean read a portion from the Scriptures and Rev. R. G. McNece delivered an address, eloquent and touching.

Rev. S. P. Wishart also made a few appropriate remarks and the choir sang "Blessed Rest." After which the remains were conveyed to their last resting place, being the body of the late wife of the deceased.

W. T. Blackburn, a nephew of Judge Blackburn from Paris, Ill., was present. The pall-bearers were: Chief Justice Zane, Judge Merritt, Miner, Smith, Barth, Anderson, Judd, Henderson, Blair, Attorneys Arthur Brown, John M. Zane, Governor West, Clark of the Supreme Court, Esch, Messrs. Baskin and M. M. Kellogg, and several whom there was present a large number of the members of the Salt Lake bar.

Notice to Attorneys.

At a preliminary meeting held at the federal court room in Salt Lake city on Monday evening, Jan. 8, 1894, for the purpose of organizing a territorial bar association, pursuant to a petition circulated and signed, and call heretofore made, a temporary organization was effected and a committee of seven on permanent organization, constitution and by-laws was appointed with instructions to report at a meeting to be held in the supreme court room, Salt Lake city, on Thursday, January 11, 1894, at 7:30 p. m.

An urgent invitation is hereby extended to all members of the bar throughout the territory to attend at this time.

EVENING WITH HANDEL AT THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

A Pleasant Entertainment at the First Congregational Church—At the Theatre—Concerts and Parties.

Of all the pleasant evenings spent by the Monday Evening club last evening was the most delightful.

The aim of the club has been development in the three lines, literary, artistic and musical. To that end committees have been appointed in charge of those departments and last evening the excellent programme for "An Evening With Handel," prepared by the committee on music was rendered in the audience room of the First Congregational church and in the presence of a large number of the members of the club and their friends.

Miss Hjelm's essay on Handel was a fine effort. She first drew a parallel between the lives and characteristics of Bach and Handel, giving the points of contrast as well as similarity. This was followed by a high tribute to Handel as a composer and as a man.

The presence of 100 members of the Tabernacle choir was an agreeable surprise to the audience, and when that famous body rendered the "Hallelujah Chorus," it was rewarded by rapturous applause. The choir sang under the direction of Professor Stephens and Professor Daynes presided at the organ.

The second musical number was a solo by Powers' silver and stateshood resolutions. Then he got up and walked around.

The talented young pianist, Miss Genevieve Ellerbeck, played exquisitely that peculiar but beautiful piano solo, which she acknowledged by a graceful bow.
